JOHN W. COLEMAN: EARLY KENTUCKY HEMP MANUFACTURER

This scrap-book consists of papers, contracts, bills of lading, etc., of my great grandfather, John Winston Coleman, of "Cottage Grove" in Woodford County, Kentucky, who operated a rope walk and bagging manufacturing business. He died at his farm, 1½ miles from Versailles, on the McCoun's Ferry Pike, on August 19, 1851, at the age of 31 years. From these papers a fair insight into the rope and bagging manufacturing business in Kentucky in the 1828-1831 period can be obtained. Great grandfather Coleman's estate was administered by his father-in-law David Sutton, of Fayette County, who was also in the hemp and rope walk business.

See: John W. Coleman: Early Kentucky Manufacturer, in Filson Club Quarterly, Jan. 1950—by J. Winston Coleman, Jr. based on these documents.

Dear Sirs,-

I send you the papers and accounts in relation to the Coleman land etc., which please adjust the you think correct. Same was no hemp rape in the lot. Strange time bought the best of it at 7½/100. The bargain was a hard, then I allowed him 2½ per cent off some of it, very bad turn. In fact, Coleman keeps the amount of my Louisville stock. I would no time have committed more than is sold at, unless at the top of the market, then is sold at. Unless at the top of the market, I took to accounts, I have entered at 10 30 coils, which are yet on. There were 95 coils outstanding, which are yet on. I have sold to the seller at this date - not Law had sold them, but substituted others for 500 had sold them, but substituted others for 500 and sold them, but substituted others for 500 and sold them, but substituted others for 500.
